Letters

I want to express my thanks for the efficient and very cordial interactions since I first submitted my manuscript [for the research article entitled 'Preschooler's Beliefs Regarding the Obese Individual']. I have worked with a variety of journals on previous articles and was very impressed with the attention to detail, the courtesy, and the professionalism I experienced throughout the exchange with your journal. I have shared my positive regard for working with the Canadian Home Economics Journal with several of my colleagues, and hope the opportunity presents itself to interact again in the future. Our college does subscribe to your journal and so more faculty are becoming familiar with the publication.

As a representative of CAHE [Caribbean Association of Home Economics] I deeply appreciate the opportunity afforded me to attend the 1982 CHEA Conference. I enjoyed the entire event . . . I now have much to share with my colleagues in CAHE and T&THE [Trinidad and Tobago Home Economics Association].

On behalf of CAHE, I wish to thank the CHEA and THEA [Toronto Home Economics Association] International Development Committees, CIDA, and all other individuals and organizations for their committed involvement in the THEA-CAHE Twinning Project. My personal thanks I extend to the immediate past and the present presidents of CHEA for making me feel so welcome and accepted as a live "link" in the Canadian-Caribbean chain. I am confident that the events and activities which the conference provided have fulfilled the hope expressed in the welcome message — namely, stimulating our personal and professional growth.

Finally, I wish the new president and her executive and board of directors a blessed and fruitful term of office.

Readership Survey

As has been the practise for the past four years, a Readership Survey form was included in the Summer issue of the Canadian Home Economics Journal. The responses from members have been very helpful to the Journal Committee when planning future issues.

The returns to date this year have been slow. Members are encouraged to return the Readership Survey form as soon as convenient. Your assistance will be appreciated by the Journal Committee.
